ANNUAL INVESTMENT COMMITMENT:

$1,375 INC GST

If your company wants to be associated with the work of the Institute and part of a network of individuals and organisations that make up a capable and credible profession delivering effective workplace health and safety to Australian workplaces, then Bronze membership is for you. The funds you invest contribute to our operational activities which are designed to advance the health and safety profession, and contribute to making Australian workplaces safer and healthier places to be.

In return, we invest in you to get you better connected:

Bronze Member Benefits include:

1. Branding and Promotion

- » You can use of the AIHS Corporate Member logo on your organisational stationery and signage
- » Your company logo and name is placed on the AIHS website Corporate Members page as well as our Annual report
- » Inclusion as Bronze member in Organisational Listing in each OHS Professional magazine (our Flagship Publication)
- » Ability to feature AIHS eNews articles on your organisation's website (with AIHS credit displayed)

2. Information Services

One organisational contact person, (over and above any of your staff that are individual members), to receive all AIHS publications and communications. This includes OHS Professional magazine (hard copy, quarterly) and the AIHS eNews (fortnightly).

3. Other Staff Benefits

Code of Ethics

This Code specifies standards of ethical conduct for professional members of the AIHS. It places obligations on them to practice and work in an objective manner; follow recognised OHS principles as specified in the relevant federal or state/territory legislation; and realise the lives, health and welfare of individuals may be dependent upon their judgement.

It may be referred to by the AIHS when dealing with complaints about work or conduct of professional members.

Nothing in the Code will require professional members of the AIHS to contravene any obligations under any relevant occupational health and safety legislation or other relevant legislation, regulations and codes.

Professional members will act in accordance with the following requirements:

1.1 Responsibility

Act and work responsibly and competently at all times to improve health and safety in workplaces and ensure they do no harm.

Give priority to the health, safety and welfare of employees, employers and other workplace health and safety stakeholders in accordance with accepted standards of moral and legal behaviour during the performance of their duties.

Ensure the health, safety and welfare of employees, employers and other workplace health and safety stakeholders takes precedence over the professional member's responsibility to sectional or private interests.

Ensure work by people under their direction is competently performed and honestly and reliably reported.

Ensure they do not engage in any illegal or improper practices.

1.2 Integrity, honesty, objectivity, impartiality

Perform their work and duties with integrity, honesty and equity while adhering to legal principles.

Provide advice, express opinions or make statements in an honest, objective, impartial and efficient way and consider the reasonably foreseeable consequences of that advice.

1.3 Areas of competence

Perform work only in their areas of competence and within the limits of their abilities. Make public statements claiming professional knowledge in an area of public interest only if competent to do so, and only if such statements are consistent with other parts of the Code and Service Standards.

1.4 Conflict of interest

Avoid real or apparent conflicts of interest. Disclose promptly and effectively all significant financial and other relevant interests with potential for providing conflict of interest or influencing the impartiality of any reports, advice or decisions.

1.5 Confidentiality

Respect the confidentiality of the information obtained in the course of their work and only reveal such information to others with the consent of the person(s) or organisation(s) or their legal representative(s).

1.6 Disclosure and whistleblowing

A professional member of the AIHS may become aware of an organisation breaching OHS legislation or standards resulting in a risk of injury or disease. How the professional member responds to this situation will be determined by the nature of the relationship (if any) the professional member has with the organisation.

Initially, the professional member should discuss the problem with management at the highest level and point out the problem, potential consequences, and professional member's ethical (and perhaps legal) responsibilities.

If there is no action on the part of the organisation and the only way of reducing the risk is to disclose their knowledge of the risk to a third party, the professional member should do so. Before doing so, the professional member should seek advice from senior colleagues, the AIHS or other relevant parties, and should inform management of the organisation of his/her actions.

In the case where the organisation is a public body, the professional member may be protected by relevant federal or state/territory legislation, eg. the Victorian Whistleblowers Protection Act 2001.

1.7 Maintaining the standing and reputation of professional members of the AIHS

Conduct their affairs so as to promote and improve the practice of professional members.

Actively assist and generally encourage the continuing development of professional members; the OHS professions and OHS associations; and where appropriate, specific areas and disciplines of OHS practice.

I hereby undertake that I have read and clearly understand the Australian Institute of Health & Safety's Code of Ethics.
