Diamond Membership

Sharing Our Vision

ANNUAL INVESTMENT COMMITMENT:

$11,000 INC GST

As a Diamond member of the AIHS, your company is recognised as making a significant contribution to workplace health and safety in Australia by investing with us in our aims and objectives, and sharing our vision for the elimination of injury, illness and death in Australian workplaces.

In return, we invest in you.

Diamond Member Benefits are extensive, and include:

1. Branding and Promotion

- » You can use the AIHS Corporate Member logo on your organisational stationery and signage
- » Your company logo and name is placed on the AIHS website Home page and Corporate Members page as well as our Annual Report
- » Promotion of service and/or product offers by your company which are offered at beneficial rates to members*
- » Inclusion as Diamond member in Organisational Listing in each OHS Professional magazine (our Flagship Publication)

- » Ability to feature AIHS eNews articles on your organisation's website (with AIHS credit displayed)
- » One organisational profiling article in the AIHS eNews
- » Placement of up to 3 advertising tiles within the AIHS eNews at no cost
- » One feature article within OHS Professional magazine (subject to editorial approval)*

2. Information Services

Ten organisational contact people, (over and above any of your staff that are individual members), to receive all AIHS publications and communications. This includes OHS Professional magazine (hard copy, quarterly) and the AIHS eNews (fortnightly)

3. Other Staff Benefits

- » Access for 10 staff members to AIHS events at the member rates
- » Priority Assistance for staff seeking AIHS Individual Membership and Certification
- » Individual General membership discount of 20% for your employees upon joining

4. Sponsorship

Priority sponsorship opportunities for AIHS events, projects, programs and activities and any mutual Corporate Partnership arrangements. For set sponsorship categories at conferences etc, this includes sponsor benefits provided at 20% discount rates.

5. Professional Development

Annual co-branded event opportunities with AIHS to develop and present targeted training/master class etc., at member selected venue

6. Leadership Engagement

Executive level engagement between AIHS leadership and one of your organisation's leadership representatives, to engage in strategic discussion around workplace health and safety, and opportunities for partnerships.

* Corporate Member product promotion:

The AIHS retains the right to promote member products at its full discretion. Corporate membership does not guarantee product promotion for corporate members. Factors considered by the AIHS in determining whether a corporate member product is promoted include but are not limited to:

- » whether the product is considered by the AIHS to be of a standard acceptable to the profession;
- » whether the product offer is considered by the AIHS to be adequately beneficial to members; or
- » any other reason the AIHS determines from time to time.

* Feature article within OHS Professional Magazine:

Our national (hard-copy and electronic copy) OHS Professional Magazine features articles on a variety of subjects, and is driven by an editorial focus on what is current and important. When planned feature articles relate to the specialty work of our Diamond members, we seek out quotes and references to include them and their work in these feature articles.

Product promotions may contain disclaimers.

If membership is sought for purposes which include product promotion, it is important that prior to committing to your membership, you clarify whether your product/service may meet these standards.

Sharing Our Vision

Our Code of Ethics

Commitment to a code of ethics is a hallmark of a profession. As the professional body, the Australian Institute of Health & Safety requires its members and certified OHS practitioners and professionals to commit to the Code of Ethics.

In committing to the Code, we agree to contribute to the prevention of harm in the workplace and promotion of people's safety and health through the design and conduct of good work. In making this commitment as members and certified OHS practitioners and professionals, we agree to uphold the values of: integrity; objectivity; impartiality; professional competence; professional behaviour; and confidentiality and appropriate disclosure.

These values are applied by:

1 Demonstrating integrity through being:

Honest

- In professional practice including in managing data, providing advice and in financial matters
- In communication, appropriately acknowledging the input of others

Trustworthy

- Reliable and credible as a trusted advisor to those to whom health and safety advice is given or who may be impacted by professional activities

Respectful

- Of the rights and dignity of all people taking account of the principles of human rights
- In avoiding actions or providing advice that may result in discrimination against individuals or groups

Fearless/courageous

- Providing accurate and impartial advice to inform decisions even in the face of opposition.

2 Being objective:

- Ensuring that professional activities are as far as practical evidence-based
- Resisting unreasonably interest-based pressures to modify professional advice.

3 Being impartial:

- Balancing competing duties to employer/client, workers, the public and the profession taking account of the primary duty to prevent harm
- Ensuring any sectional or personal interests do not impact on professional activities
- Avoiding circumstances which may compromise professional conduct or where conflicts of interest may arise.

4 Practicing competently:

- Understanding relevant laws, regulation and recognised standards of practice as they relate to professional duties
- Maintaining and developing knowledge and skills
- Planning, conducting and reflecting on professional competence to understand my personal ability to undertake work before doing so
- Representing areas of competence honestly and objectively
- Ensuring persons working under my authority or supervision are competent to perform assigned tasks
- Acting on the basis of adequate knowledge.

5 Acting professionally:

- Encouraging and supporting other OHS professionals
- Upholding the reputation and trustworthiness of the practices of the profession
- Having due regard for the effect professional activities may have on others
- Respecting the skills and competence of other professionals when soliciting for work, and not solicit by offering or paying inducements
- Contributing to organisational ethical capability
- Recognising threats to professional behaviour and seeking to avoid, manage or resolve such threats.

6 Managing information appropriately:

- Maintaining confidentiality of medical and personal details as well as organisational information not related to health and safety, except as required to be disclosed under a law or by a court
- Considering legislation and 'right to know' of matters impacting on health and safety when managing OHS information
- Where internal disclosure does not result in corrective action, taking appropriate action based on professional advice and the health and safety risk involved.
