ABOUT THE PERTH SAFETY SYMPOSIUM

The Australian Institute of Health & Safety (WA Branch) Perth Safety Symposium will be held on Friday 4 October 2019 at ECU Mount Lawley campus.

Come and join your professional and practitioner peers and industry leaders at the start of Safety Month 2019 at the Perth Safety Symposium.

The theme this year, SafetyGenX:M: 2020 and beyond - Health and Safety in the next decade is about people!

You will hear from a series of speakers sharing how they are being ‘forward thinking’ in managing risk into the next decade to an acceptable level, by focusing on their people! The format is engaging, entertaining and fast paced.

Each presentation providing informative, practically applicable concepts, grounded in real world proven research designed to challenge each attendee to open their mind and expand their ‘toolbox’ when preparing to manage workplace health and safety risk into and beyond 2020 – as it’s all about you and your people.:

ABOUT THE PERTH SAFETY SYMPOSIUM

The Safety Institute of Australia (Western Australia Branch) invites you to attend the 2018 Perth Safety Symposium, SafetyGenX:M - Improving Health and Safety across the generations, to be held on Friday 28th September 2018 at Edith Cowan University, Mount Lawley Campus.

Addressing the theme Improving Health and Safety across the generations you will hear from experts in informative and insightful keynote presentations, followed by our new and exciting ‘SafetyGenX:M’ format sessions. You will be entertained by the ‘Great debate’ and rounded off with refreshments and networking.

We are delighted to announce our Keynote Speakers:

Naomi Kemp…a super-competitive and mad-passionate safety nerd driven by her own personal experiences and the tragic stories from the people she works with. With her ever-present sense of humour and passion for her message, Naomi discusses that Safe Work Australia admits diseases are significantly under-represented in workers’ compensation statistics. She challenges the audience with evidence-based research into how we can better manage health in the workplace.

Stephanie Mayman…an influential professional with huge knowledge and a wealth of experience working in Unions, National Occupational Health and Safety Commission, Industrial Relations Commission and currently as Chair of the WA OHS Commission. She was involved in the development of the existing WA OSH legislation and recently as Chair of the Ministerial Advisory Panel, Stephanie knows the challenges for the next generation and will share her entertaining and thought-provoking insights.

Professor Caroline Finch…has produced over 700 academic papers concerning injury prevention in sports and has exceptional injury prevention knowledge. Professor Finch will share her insights about how the sports industry manages injuries, in particular muscular skeletal injuries, and, how workplace injury prevention can benefit from sports’ ‘personal’ approach.

Our SafetyGenX:M section of the symposium (developed in association with our partners from IFAP), features short, informative and entertaining talks from recognised industry experts including:

- Todd Conklin… safety and accident prevention for the new generation
- Kevin Jones… “Democratising safety”
- Christian Frost… “Insights for a new generation”
- Dr Ian Dunican… “Sleep more and get richer”

Maria Saraceni, our leading OHS legal expert will chair The Great Debate’ as an entertaining and engaging way to round off an ideas packed symposium. Light refreshments and networking will follow.
