ABOUT THE SOUTH AUSTRALIA SAFETY SYMPOSIUM

The Australian Institute of Health & Safety invites you to join us for the 2022 Annual South Australian AIHS Branch Symposium which will be held on Friday 21 October 2022 located at the Adelaide Zoo.

The Symposium will commence at 10:30 and will run until 17:00. A light morning tea will be served on arrival.

A separate annual Branch dinner event will be held after SALUS 2022 preceded by drinks amidst the animals for which all attendees at the Symposium are warmly invited to book in at a discounted rate.

There will be a broad focus for the SA Learning and Update Symposium for 2022 (SALUS22). It will include keynote speeches by the new SA WHS Minister the Hon. Kym Maher and by distinguished WHS lawyer and AIHS Fellow and Lifetime Achievement awardee Michael Tooma.

Other major topics at SALUS 22 are a regulatory update by the head of Safework SA, Martyn Campbell including on dust diseases; addressing workplace bullying as a WHS issue by Professor Michelle Tuckey; research on improving WHS in the transport industry by A/Professor Anjum Naweed; WHS issues in major construction projects by Sonya Barber; anxiety, workplace performance and WHS by Professor Petrina Coventry; WHS issues in disability care by Garry Velt; a WHS legal update by Luke Holland and Daria McLachlan; and insights from WHS leaders by Andrew Barrett.

Those who can are warmly invited to also book into the separate annual drinks and dinner event that follows with guest speaker Alex Thomas who will speak about WHS in the agriculture and rural sector.

Kym Bills, Chair
