Emeritus Professor, Michael Quinlan, University of NSW
Michael Quinlan is emeritus professor of industrial relation in the School of Management. He also holds an honorary professorial post in the Faculty of Social Sciences and Humanities at the University of Tasmania and a visiting appointment in the Business School, Middlesex University London. His research has focused on work organisation and regulatory aspects of occupational health and safety (OHS), the impact of workplace death and industrial relations history and policy. He is the author of numerous articles and ten books.

Angela Genoni, Lecturer, Edith Cowan University
Angela is a lecturer and researcher at Edith Cowan University, and completed her PhD in 2018 looking at the long term effect of low carbohydrate diets on the gut microbiome. She currently teaches in the undergraduate nutrition program at Edith Cowan University. Angela is passionate about the role of nutrition as part of a healthy lifestyle.

Professor Caroline Finch AO, Deputy Vice Chancellor, ECU
Professor Caroline Finch AO is the Deputy Vice Chancellor (Research) at Edith Cowan University, Western Australia and Research Director of the Australian Centre for Research into Injury in Sport and its Prevention (ACRISP), which is one of only four centres worldwide recognised by the International Olympic Committee (IOC) as a Research Centre for the Prevention of Injury and Protection of Athlete Health since 2010.

Georgina Poole, Safety Advisor, KCGM
Georgina is an experienced OHS professional with over 10 plus years of experience in the Mining, Construction and Oil and Gas Industries. Having worked for major corporations as well as small family run businesses in major cities to remote regional outback towns and everything in between, Georgina brings us an interesting insight on what it is actually like for a female working in male orientated industries.
David Clarke, CEO, Safety Institute of Australia
David was appointed CEO of the SIA in September 2014, brought in from outside the field of health and safety to work with the Board to create a new strategic plan and to build a strong administration capable of providing industry leadership across all of the SIA’s key strategic focus areas. David has Bachelor of Education and Masters of Business Administration and describes himself as a jack of all trades. He has more than 20 years’ experience as a Chief Executive, including leading two previous industry bodies.

Greg Smith, Lawyer & International Award Winning Author
Greg is an international award winning author and qualified lawyer who has spent more than two decades specialising in safety and health management. Greg works with clients helping them to understand their responsibility for safety and health, and develop processes to discharge those responsibilities.

Klaus Hofer, Founder & CEO, CAT-I Usability Mapping
A corporate psychologist by training, Klaus’s passion for Usability Mapping was triggered by a serious incident that endangered the life of an unsuspecting hospital patient. In search of the cause, he found only opinions, judgmental answers and countless rules. This led him to the question: “How can well trained, focused and dedicated professionals make mistakes that could kill someone?”

Kym Bills, Chair, College of Fellows AIHS
Kym trained as an economist and diplomat and first managed safety professionals in 1994 when he led the Australian Government Maritime Division in Canberra. He was foundation head of the Australian Transport Safety Bureau from 1999-2009. In addition to transport safety, he has worked on petroleum and mine safety and on regulatory reform and national WHS legislative policy. Kym is a graduate of the Australian Institute of Company Directors and has been an AICD fellow since 1993.

Laura Fruhen, Lecturer of Applied Psychology, University of Western Australia
Dr Laura Fruhen is a Lecturer of Applied Psychology at the University of Western Australia’s School of Psychological Sciences. She received her PhD from the University of Aberdeen in the UK in 2012. Laura researches issues such as leadership, team dynamics, work design, culture, and attitudes at work. She links these concepts with workplace safety, mental health and wellbeing and behaviour. She has conducted her research in the energy sector, the aviation sector, healthcare, construction, and firefighting.
Lloyd D’Castro, Managing Director, Working life

Lloyd progresses people’s potential. He maximises individual’s, teams and organisation’s performance by either working with them or one on one, in a team environment or taking a whole of organizational approach. It is further achieved through counselling, team development sessions or via organisational reviews leading to team leadership or change management programs. His specialties are employee assistance program, organisational development specialist, change management, executive coaching, team development and leadership development.

Maria Saraceni, Barrister, Chair of IFAPP

Maria practices in regulatory and compliance law and advises on corporate governance matters. Her wealth of experience across all facets of employment law, industrial relations and workplace health and safety is well recognised. Maria is a strategic thinker who is as comfortable finding solutions to issues without resorting to legal action as she is in representing parties in the course of legal proceedings.

Martin Ralph, Regional Inspector for Department of Mines Petroleum

Martin Ralph is the Regional Inspector for Department of Mines Petroleum. Martin held the role of Managing Director of IFAP for 15 years, during which time he was accountable to the Board of Directors for the corporate governance of the organisation. The Industry Reference Committee (IRC) provides a conduit for industry feedback to government on industry trends and for promotion of Vocational Education and Training (VET) to employers. Currently Martin is the Regional Inspector for Department of Mines Petroleum.

Hon. Minister Bill Johnston MLA, Minister for Mines and Petroleum; Energy; Industrial Relations

Bill Johnston was sworn in as the Mines and Petroleum, Commerce and Industrial Relations, Electoral Affairs, and Asian Engagement Minister in March 2017. This occurred a week after the WA Labor Party’s landslide victory against the Liberal Government. As our State’s first Asian Engagement Minister, Minister Johnston’s focus was to capitalise on the rapid population and economic growth in Asia to create more job-boosting opportunities in Western Australia.

Rob Watson, Head of HSE, FMG

Mr Watson was appointed Group Manager Health and Safety in 2014 after joining Fortescue in 2011. Prior to this, Mr Watson spent 15 years in a number of senior corporate health and safety roles in large mining companies. Mr Watson’s career in health and safety spans over 25 years in a number of industries and commodities. Mr Watson holds a Masters in Occupational Health and Safety.
Stephanie Mayment is the Chairperson for the WA Commission of Occupational Safety and Health. Stephanie has expertise in occupational health and safety (OSH), superannuation, conciliation and mediation. She maintains considerable stakeholder engagement in all fields including dispute resolution and mediation and has expertise at state, national and international levels and is well versed in public speaking.

Professor Stephen Teo is a Professor of Work and Performance and Professorial Research Fellow at Edith Cowan University, Australia. Prior to this appointment, he was the Interim Director of the Global Business Innovation Research Platform at RMIT University. While employed at the Auckland University of Technology Business School, Professor Teo was recognised under the New Zealand Governments Research Performance ranking (2012 PBRF scheme) as one of the leading scholars in New Zealand, as shown by the outcome of the 2012 New Zealand Performance-based Research Funding evaluation (ranked in the top 6% of New Zealand business researchers (Ranked A – world class). since 1993.

Liam O'Connor, Group Health, Safety, Environment & Quality Manager, Tasman Rope Access
